The activity of CME registered 1443/12/2010
“MARBELLA AORTIC SYMPOSIUM 2011:
DISASTERS IN OPEN AND ENDOVASCULAR AORTIC PROCEDURES”
has been awarded 4,3 credits which equal 19,5 lecturing hours.

Dear Friends,

Bad results are often underreported in the literature and medical meetings. Nevertheless, it is when things go wrong when we are able to learn and avoid the same mistakes in the future.

Sharing our individual knowledge can help us reduce our morbidity and mortality rates.

In this meeting we will analyze our bad results, critically (but constructively) reconsidering them from the indication, the planning, the technical procedure and the post intervention point of view.

Learning from catastrophes is a lesson in humility but it is also a way to show respect to our past and future patients.

Cardiovascular surgeons, vascular radiologists, intensivists, anaesthetists, cardiologists, perfusionists, cardiac, cardiothoracic, and vascular surgeons are encouraged to present their cases and studies about the topic. Original work will be published by Springer in a book with the same title of the meeting.

CME credits will also be available. Selected communications will be published in a book about the topic edited by Springer.

We hope to share with you this new meeting concept in a relaxed and positive atmosphere.

How to get there.

By Road

You can get to Marbella by the Autovía del Mediterráneo A-7 (the A-7 Motorway) (previously the N-340), or the Costa del Sol Highway (AP-7).

The construction of the A-7 Underpass through San Pedro Alcántara will improve internal traffic circulation.

In addition, there is a comprehensive bus service to the main capitals and towns of the country.

By Plane

There are two important international airports which are less than an hour away by road:

- In the east there is the Pablo Ruiz Picasso International Airport of Málaga, about 45 kilometres away.
- In the west there is the Gibraltar International Airport, about 80 kilometres away.

Both airports guarantee direct connections to the principal cities of Spain, Europe, North Africa and the United States.

The forthcoming Málaga Airport extension will allow for twice as many passengers, it already being among the three with the largest traffic in Spain.

From Málaga Airport, there are several ways of getting to Marbella:

- A direct-line bus which links Málaga Airport and Marbella Bus Station, a journey of around 45 minutes.
- A large number of car hire companies.
- Taxi service.

By Train

Marbella is ideally connected by bus both to Fuengirola station, 27 kms away, and to the one in the capital, Málaga, 57 kms away, which also caters for long-distance travel.

From the latter, known as María Zambrano Station it is possible to use the high-speed AVEline linking Málaga to the network of major capitals: Madrid, Seville, Barcelona, etc.
